CLAIMS

1. A method for conducting offline electronic commerce transactions having a vendor barcode scanner and a vendor cash register comprising:

- (a) providing a personal code to a person for their use to purchase goods;
 - (b) converting said personal code into barcode format to form a User ID Barcode, said User ID Barcode corresponding to said personal code and including at least one special character to distinguish the barcode as a User ID Barcode from a product barcode;
 - (c) storing said personal code in said User ID Barcode format by said person for use to purchase goods and storing said personal code in a User Vendor Management Server to permit purchases to be made at a vendor;
 - (d) establishing a User Account in a User Vendor Management Server corresponding to said personal code;
 - (e) depositing funds in said User Account to establish a credit limit;
 - (f) conducting purchases at vendors each having a vendor server wherein each purchase includes scanning product barcodes including product price and said User ID Barcode with a product barcode scanner at the vendor cash register and transmitting both product barcodes and User ID Barcode to said vendor server;
 - (g) detecting the User ID Barcode at the vendor server and forwarding the ID Barcode and purchase price to said User Vendor Management Server;
 - (h) comparing the purchase price with the funds in said User Vendor Management Server to determine if there are available funds within the credit limit in the User Vendor Management Server account, and if there are, sending an approval signal to the vendor server;
 - (i) forwarding the approval signal to the vendor cash register; and
 - (i) repeating steps (f) through (i) for subsequent purchase transactions using said User ID Barcode.

This barcode: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Encodes exactly that same token, and 2. Includes the prefix 3PL: to signal that it is a User ID barcode (not a product barcode).

Key Points:

- “Albertsons Cash” is the in-app digital wallet that issues a one-time transaction token. Albertsons
- That token is then turned into a scannable barcode for checkout.
- The 3PL : prefix distinguishes it from ordinary product barcodes.

(c) storing said personal code in said User ID Barcode format by said person for use to purchase goods and storing said personal code in a User Vendor Management Server to permit purchases to be made at a vendor;

(c) storing said personal code ["3PL:300:7311bc00-5335-43c8-90d2-56b4a27c5658:1c0a0280595e11eea2233f2ff400eb89:49149755220"] in said User ID Barcode ["SEE IMAGE BELOW"] format by said person for use to purchase ["purchases"] goods and storing said personal code ["3PL:300:7311bc00-5335-43c8-90d2-56b4a27c5658:1c0a0280595e11eea2233f2ff400eb89:49149755220"] in a User Vendor Management Server ["collect information about you when you use our services"] to permit purchase ["purchases"] to be made at a vendor.

Example: When you use Albertsons Cash, the app:

1. Generates a unique code (the "3PL" token).
2. Converts that exact token into a barcode (the User ID Barcode).
3. Stores the barcode (and thus the token) in your app account for future purchases.

4. Collects and retains that token as part of the personal data it gathers when you pay at any Albertsons vendor.
